

Trucker used his size, strength, and mighty horn to try to get his way. This wasn't very kind. Use the cards below to start discussions about how to navigate some common situations where peers might use their size, strength, or volume to try to get what they want.

A classmate pushes ahead of you while walking in line.
What could you say to them?

A friend always wants to race but you don't like to.
What could you say to them?

A friend says the tallest person gets to go first.
This doesn't feel fair.
We don't choose our height.
What could you say?

You play games with your friends but one of them always says "I go first."
What could you say to them?

Trucker used his size, strength, and mighty horn to try to get his way. This wasn't very kind. Use the cards below to start discussions about how to navigate some common situations where peers might use their size, strength, or volume to try to get what they want.

A classmate uses their body to get to the closet before you.

What could you say to them?

A classmate snatches to get the first marker from a basket on the table.

What could you say?

A classmate uses a loud voice to interrupt and speak over you.

What could you say to them?

An older kid says you can't play because you are too young.

What could you say to them?